

The Bloomfield Record.

(OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE TOWNSHIP.)

S. M. HULLIN, Editor and Proprietor.

FRIDAY, MAY 14, 1875.

All who are interested in having a live newspaper in this village are requested to send us by mail, or to the publishing office, local items of news, correspondence, etc., for publication.

No charge is made for publishing Marriages, Deaths, or Religious Notices. Single numbers of The Record can always be had at this Office, at the Post Office, and of the Newsdealers.

All kinds of PRINTING done at THE RECORD OFFICE.

Barbara Frichele and Her Flag.

We have received a letter from a lady of this village, whose indignation was excited by the "True Story of Barbara Frichele," emanating from a Baltimore paper and published in THE RECORD last week. Her desire is to have published a letter upon the same matter of controversy, written from Brooklyn by a lady, had printed in a recent number of the Argus of that city. We give the narrative and argument of the Brooklyn lady:

"At the close of the war the head nurse of the hospital at Fredericksburg, Va., came to my home with one or two of her nurses, and spent some days with me, and has recently visited me in Brooklyn. Being much interested in Barbara Frichele and her patriotic act, I made particular inquiries of my friend concerning her, and she never intimated that there was the slightest doubt of its truth. She was familiar with the house, and a niece of 'Barbara Frichele' was under her as a nurse in the hospital, but the noble woman heard just before she went there, so that she could not have survived very long the brave deed that has given her to fame.

"At her recent visit, my friend was showing me the photograph of the 'house,' with its attic windows, and tiny flag, and another of 'Barbara' herself, a slight, spare woman, with a thin, grave face, indicating firmness and decision. If the incident had not occurred, would it not have been spoken of on the spot, and by a member of the family, or would these pictures of the house and individual have been taken and sold in Fredericksburg City if she had not 'set up the flag' that was 'haunted down'?"

It will be remembered that in Whittier's poem Stonewall Jackson figures as one of the leading characters. Mr. Engelbrecht, the "highly respected and loyal citizen" of Fredericksburg, as stated last week, resided in a house directly opposite Mrs. Frichele's, and was an eye-witness to the Confederate army's passage through. By his version, Jackson's corps passed through other streets, at some distance away from that on which he and Mrs. Frichele resided. He also states that he saw no flag waving while the Rebel invasion lasted. In this latter particular, however, his story differs from the Confederate narrative of General Bull. Early, which runs as follows:

"On the morning of the 15th of May, 1862, the following incident occurred, which I witnessed in person. As my brigade of Ewell's division was marching through the town on the street which connects with the road to Boonsboro, a young girl about ten or eleven years old was standing on the platform in front of a framed wooden house on the left side of the street as we marched, with a small flag (United States) of the size of a handkerchief, in her hand, which she was slowly waving while reciting in a dull, monotonous tone, 'Hurrah for the stars and stripes! Down with the stars and stripes!' By her side stood another girl about five or six years old, looking as if she did not know what it all was about, and the girl that was going through the performance seemed to have no heart in the matter, but to be merely going mechanically through a recitation she had been taught. The only indication of a disposition to interfere with the girl was by a one-legged man who had been accompanying one of my regiments on horseback during the campaign. When I got up I found him somewhat excited, and upon my asking him what was the matter, he called my attention to the girl with the flag, and said he had a good mind to get down and take the flag from her. He had evidently taken two or three extra drinks, and I told him he was a fool—to go on and let the girl alone—she could do no harm with her empty flag, and thereupon he moved on. I have witnessed a number of instances of the display of small flags, or the Union colors, as they were called, by ladies in the enemy's country as we passed through their towns, but I never heard of an instance in which any violence or rudeness was used by our officers or soldiers on such occasions; though, when the exhibitions became abusive, our boys were always ready with a good natured witicism or jest that put an end to these exuberant displays of patriotism."

We would not unjustly detract anything from the fine poem of Mr. Whittier or the treasured memory of Mrs. Frichele. On the contrary, we can cheerfully add testimony as an eye-witness during those memorable days from the Union standpoint. We distinctly recall the conspicuous and exceptional loyalty of an old lady of Fredericksburg, one who, since the first reading of Whittier's poem, we have been unable to think of as any other person than the identical Barbara Frichele.

Many Union soldiers who marched through Fredericksburg on the 15th of September, 1862, will remember an old lady whom they saw leaving from an upper window of a house in the western part of the town, and who had in her hands an American flag, of considerable size. Her appearance was that of one stricken with the infirmities of age, but re-animating with love and loyalty for the Union. If we mistake not, hearty cheers went up from the lady in blue as each regiment passed the place. Although there were many houses closed and barred, there were, occasionally, other Union flags displayed. But no demonstration seemed to inspire such deep-felt enthusiasm as did this aged woman's assertion of her loyalty. Whether all the details of the poem are literally true or not, there is little doubt in regard to the old lady's devotion to the Union cause.

The Bloomfield-Montclair Spelling Match.

Arrangements are being perfected in Bloomfield and Montclair for the grand Spelling Bee, which is to come off in this village, on Wednesday evening, May 26th. There is little doubt, judging from the preparations now being made, that this match will be more interesting than any that has yet taken place. The classes in each village have been thoroughly organized. The number of participants has been fixed at 12 on each side. Rev. Mr. Wolfe will be the Montclair leader. Mr. Isaiah Peckham has been chosen as the leader of the Bloomfield class. The two leaders are to agree upon some disinterested gentleman, residing outside of both villages, who is to select and pronounce the words. None of the spellers will retire upon missing, but all will continue to spell until the list of words is exhausted. The number of misspelled words against each side will be recorded as the exercises proceed, and the side making the best record will be declared victors. The prizes, which will be liberal, have not yet been selected. The admission fee will be 25 cents, and the surplus of receipts above expenses will go to the Bloomfield Public School Library.

M. E. District Conference.

The Sixth District Conference of the M. E. Church was held in Bloomfield M. E. Church on Wednesday last. Rev. A. L. Brice, Presiding Elder. The attendance numbered about fifty delegates. After the usual opening with devotional exercises, followed by routine business, the District Steward's meeting was held, at which there were 15 laymen present.

At the morning session, an interesting paper on Pastoral Work was presented by Rev. J. D. Blain. Another feature was the presentation of questions relating to Christianity and church discipline, to be answered at the afternoon session.

Rev. C. N. Sims, D. D. contributed, in the afternoon, a paper on Church Finances, after which there ensued an ardent discussion upon the topic as presented. A number of the laymen present participated in the debate. The questions presented in the morning were answered by Dr. Sims and Rev. L. R. Dunn of Newark.

Rev. J. J. Reed's interesting address on Pulpit Power was given at the evening session.

The Fish-horn Nuisance.

Our men printers are bound to respect? Last Saturday evening two of these peddlers drove about our streets, making noise enough with their outrageous horns to drive people half crazy. After making the tour of the town, they brought up at the Center and united their efforts in a discordant concert which lasted until a late hour. Nobody it appears, has authority to interfere in these transgressions of the rights of those who love quiet streets and good order. Therefore there is the greater necessity that some action should be taken by which power can be conferred upon our village officials enabling them to prohibit or keep within bounds such noisy demonstrations. The public health is also a matter of concern, in this connection. It is often the case that the vegetables, fish and fruit peddled about our streets by these clamorous hucksters are unfit for use.

Our Hotel.

Capt. Gillett has nearly completed the renovation and refurbishing of the Bloomfield Hotel, at the Center of our village. The entire interior has been most skillfully treated, no expense or pains having been spared to render it complete and convenient as a first-class hotel. Those who have visited the place under the old management, if they will now take the pains to call, will find great changes and radical improvements.

The parlor has been newly and handsomely carpeted and furnished. The main dining hall has been thoroughly renovated, and a private dining room fitted up in an elegant manner in the room adjoining.

On the second floor all the rooms have been newly painted, papered, carpeted and furnished. Some of the larger apartments are elegant in their appointments, the good skill of Capt. Gillett as a caterer in these matters being everywhere apparent. Although it is yet early in the season for suburban visitors, applications have been already made, and one of the choice suites at this hotel has been engaged for the season.

The Gas Company.

The annual stockholders' meeting of the Montclair Gas and Water Company was held at the office in this place on Tuesday afternoon. The following is the list of Directors elected:

Jos. A. Davis, Dan. Dodd, Eugene Vanderpool, Amzi Dodd, S. H. Plum, A. T. Morris, J. J. H. Love, A. A. Smalley, T. W. Langstroth, P. H. Van Riper. The officers are: President, Jos. A. Davis, Vice Pres., Dan. Dodd, Sec., E. Vanderpool, Treas., Horace Pierson. After the election a collation was partaken of at the Hotel. The lunch was served in Capt. Gillett's best style.

Sanitary Lecture.

The Montclair Sanitary Association have perfected an arrangement with General Egbert L. Vile, of New York, to deliver a lecture in Jacobus Hall, Montclair, on Tuesday evening next. The cost of this lecture, which, we learn, is $50, is to be defrayed from the proceeds derived from the recent Spelling Match between Montclair and Bloomfield. The officers of the Sanitary Association extended a cordial invitation to residents in Bloomfield to attend the lecture. There will be no admission fee. Gen. Vile will devote a portion of the day, previous to the lecture, to a tour of inspection of both our villages. It may therefore be reasonable to expect that practical local hints and observations pertaining to sanitary matters in both places will be made. The health of our communities, as involved in drainage, a proper system in building new dwellings, the arrangement of their surroundings, etc., are all matters of concern. We hope as many as can will avail themselves of this chance to hear what so distinguished a gentleman as Gen. Vile has to say. He is an acknowledged authority on practical sanitary science.

About Dogs.

Mr. Editor: The dog is a carnivorous, roving animal. We thus describe him for the reason that further on, it is proposed to say something about keeping dogs. We are not proprietors of a dog, but have enjoyed frequent opportunities to observe their habits. They come to us in packs and single. They distribute their tracks on our piazzas, carouse on our new-made flower-beds, hold high carnival over our garden and lawn, make raids on our hen-ary to maim and slay, leaving a sad array of dead and wounded. We have even followed them to their reputed residence, at untimely hours of the night, to meet them severely mocking at our fury.

The plague of dear old Betsey Trotwood was "Donkeys," and her constant exclamation was—"Bridget—Donkey." The plague of the superintendent of our domestic enterprise is Dogs. In the sweet dawning hours our ears are saluted with the startling exclamation of "Spikkins' Dogs!" In short, dogs are the terror and peril of our daily life. We might arm ourselves and stand sentinel to guard our borders against the ruthless invaders, but we are engaged in industrial pursuits, besides we are not, belittlingly inclined.

Now what we have to say about keeping dogs is this. We beseech you, owners of dogs—keep the dear brutes on your own premises. We desire no more their volunteer services. If you love your dogs, keep them at home; the atmosphere abroad is becoming obnoxious to your pets.

N. J. Editors' Excursion.

A Committee of the N. J. Editorial Association, having returned from a trip to Oakley Springs, Va. The route will be by way of Philadelphia, Baltimore, Harper's Ferry, and thence up the celebrated Valley of Virginia to Mr. Jackson and the Springs, returning by way of Strasburg, Manassas and Washington. Another route contemplates a longer tour through the upper part of Maryland, visiting Hagerstown, and thence to Harper's Ferry, &c. The New Brunswick Freeman, the editor of which is one of the Committee, says:

"The prospecting committee are satisfied that a most pleasant and profitable excursion of the Editorial Association can be made to Oakley Springs, and at reasonable rates. Our Editorial party will meet at the Springs the Virginia Editorial Association, the Governor and many of the leading men of that State, also probably many from Maryland and other Southern States. On Tuesday evening the New Jersey Association would be formally introduced to the Virginians at a 'Reception Party.' On Wednesday a grand Tournament in Southern style would take place for the entertainment of the party. On Wednesday evening a 'Hop,' and on Thursday evening an Editorial Dinner, followed with toasts and speeches."

The week commencing the 21 of June next is the time proposed for the Excursion by the committee. Besides the Southern programme, propositions have also been received from Long Branch, Watkins Glen, and other places.

County Finances.

The annual report of the finances of Essex County has been published by the Chosen Freeholders. Bloomfield is credited with the payment of taxes to the amount of $23,023.62. She gets back $2,469.82, being amount expended on bridges in the township; also $5,923.52 paid her from the school fund. Thus a balance is shown of over $15,000 contributed by the tax payers of Bloomfield for outside county expenses. It has often been remarked that "we are 'paying more than our share of the county tax,'" and from the showing of the report, there seems to be little doubt that it is really so.

FURNITURE.—J. G. Keyler, the Bloomfield furniture dealer, has this Spring an unusually large and fine stock of furniture, which he is selling at low figures for cash. Chamber suites are offered from $160 down to $40. Book-cases and writing-desks from $18 up to $60. Residents of Bloomfield and vicinity who are about making purchases should call and look through Mr. Keyler's extensive ware rooms.

(From Newark Courier, Wednesday.)

The Chosen Freeholders.

The new Board of Freeholders organized to-day by the election of all the old Republican officers. The Democrats made a desperate effort to secure the control of the Board by the admission of the members from Belleville chosen at the election held under the "Bayonne charter," but who, according to competent legal opinions, had no shadow of claim to the seats. But the acting Clerk, adhering pertinaciously and firmly to the laws governing the case, refused to recognize these claimants for admission, calling the names of the old members from that town, and the Republicans thus having a majority, the organization was finally effected in accordance with their views. The re-election of Mr. Farmer as Director will be peculiarly gratifying to the people of the county, his high integrity and eminent capacity, to say nothing of his familiarity with the affairs of the county, giving a conspicuous value to his services in that responsible position. The re-election of Mr. Woodruff as Clerk is also matter for rejoicing. He has filled that position for years with marked credit to himself and the county and his re-appointment is only a proper recognition of his established worth as a public officer. The selection of Mr. Hazard as Auditor, and the re-election of Collector Pierson, will be hailed with satisfaction by the tax payers of both political parties. The same may be said of the other officers re-elected, all having deserved well of the county in whose service they have been engaged.

Local Laconics.

—How nice the grass begins to look.
—Look out! the trees are shooting.
—The roads are being put in repair.
—The weather is at last favorable for gardening operations.
—The plank sidewalk on Park avenue has been thoroughly repaired.
—E. Mildness is among the latest arrivals. She is welcome, though a full month behind time.
—The Collector's sale of property for tax arrears has been adjourned until Monday, June 6th.
—The lawn of Mr. G. W. Cook was the first in town, so far as seen, to be clipped by the mower.
—Miss S. A. Moore, of Bloomfield, takes passage for Europe by the Cunard Steamer Algeria to-morrow.

—Mr. Jarvis Peloulet is making some extensive improvements upon his highly placed on Chestnut Hill.

—Our Public School will soon require an enlargement. The attendance is 100 greater now than last year at this date.

—Jobbing is brisk with the carpenters and painters, but there are few new buildings going up either in Bloomfield or Montclair.

—A horse and carriage belonging to Mr. Ely of Prospect street, East Orange, was stolen on Wednesday evening, from the vicinity of Berkeley School House.

—Our town fathers ought to fix those "bumpers" made in some streets by the laying of stone crosswalks. The walks are not too high, but the slopes on each side are too abrupt. Those who drive over them are obliged to bring their horses to a walk in order to cross them without danger of breaking the carriage springs or the necks of those who ride.

—Samuel Moore, at his market on Glenwood avenue, has lately been opening the finest oysters of the season. The weather is so cool that May, so far as oyster eating is concerned, is as good as as though spelled with an R. or a dozen of them, for that matter. Mr. Moore takes pride in supplying his customers with the best and freshest of everything in his line.

Mr. Edward Haslam, of East Orange, will shortly commence the erection of ten houses on the property in Mulford street recently purchased by him. They will be rented to persons of moderate income at about $15 per month, and will contain 6 or 7 rooms with a cellar. The want of this class of dwellings has long been felt and the supply will not equal the demand for several years.

—A Spelling Bee came off in the south end of town on Wednesday night. It was arranged by the people of Watseque Christ Church Chapel, and was held in the Berkeley School House. A large audience was secured. Mr. C. M. Davis was announcer. The spellers numbered sixteen, mostly young people. The prize was a handsome Bible to be awarded to the person making the least number of mistakes. Miss Rebecca Sherman, a pupil in the Bloomfield High School, was the winner of the prize.

The Grangers of Burlington county are going into active business on their own account, not only in agricultural, but also in other departments of trade. At Medford they have purchased a large building which they are extensively fitting up. On the first floor there will be a store, blacksmith shop, wheelwright shop, etc. On the second floor there will be the bank room, office of the State Grange, bank, drug store, transportation office, law offices, etc. The third story will be used for lodge rooms.

A singular affray took place at Trenton on Monday last. Three men while working on the third story of a new brick building became involved in a quarrel which led to blows, and resulted in all of them falling to the ground on top of each other, bricks, mortar and other material tumbling down upon them. They were left in a bruised condition, blooded, bruised bodies and broken limbs were left as memorials of the adventurous fight. The injuries to one were dangerous, if not fatal, and those of the others, very serious. The wounded men were carried to their homes on stretchers, surrounded by men, women and children, where medical aid was summoned. The occurrence created considerable excitement.

Klennen, the Hoboken bank defaulter, when lodged in the States Prison last week, stated that his robberies began eight years ago, and that six years ago he was a defaulter to a large amount than at the present time. The careless and indifference of the bank officials alone saved him from detection.

The 4th of March, 1877, comes on Sunday, and as the inauguration of a new President will take place on Monday, Grant will have an extra day in office—a sort of third term, you know.
